ious bacteria often associated with externally caused pimples and blackheads.

To remove the distressing embarrassment of these skin blemishes the second Dornol formula exerts a direct action on your broken out skin while the medication does its work. This plus its pleasant odor will spare you the mental distress which is associated with ugly, malodorous, medicated preparations. Imagine You can apply this Dornol to your skin by day and late the next day without greater damage to your appearance while becoming fully aware that medical science is taking care of your skin and keeps away new eruptions rose up on your nose and forehead and body. You can also get relief if you use the medicine at a time when you are out of the water for a few feet above the water. Treatment may be continued without hindrance.

DEMAND IMMEDIATE CARE

The internal substances on your skin include dead cells, residue from the sweat glands, and a high quantity of oil excreted by the sebaceous glands. A most important factor in skin disorders occurs when thousands of these tiny sebaceous glands discharge more oil than the skin can use for lubrication. Unless special care is given, the oil forms a heavy film which attracts foreign matter to your skin much as any oil mop picks up dust. These infectious external substances may be classified into three general groups.

1. Airborne materials such as dust, pollen, condensation products of smoke, vapors, etc.
2. Materials brought in contact with the skin, such as tiny fragments of clothing, bedding, etc.
3. Microorganisms such as bacteria and fungi.

See the difference between a healthy skin and a poorly maintained skin.

The first instinctive reaction to pimples and blackheads is to squeeze them out with your fingers. A bit of experimentation along these lines soon provides convincing proof that this succeeds only in inflaming your skin and spreading the infection. Under no circumstances should pimples and blackheads ever be squeezed.

Two soundable aims to a brieve in controlling this skin condition are to clear the pores of clogging matter, and to inhibit the excessive oiliness of the skin. Toward these ends, Dermal Products' research makes available two formulas. One is to aid in thorough cleansing by highly detergent penetration which simplifies the removal of waste and foreign matter. The other is to discourage oiliness with clinically proved ingredients, and to kill inter-

FIFTY-FIFTY

Raising five spirited sons was no easy task for pretty Widow Murphy—until a newspaper ad changed everything!

THE Widow Murphy never really got over grieving about Mike's passing. True he had left her with five small children to support and without a cent of insurance, him being without work at the time the policy lapsed and the big truck hit him. But what a man he had been for good cheer and helping her with the housework and dishes—a song or a joke always on his lips!

There it was, big as life and as welcome as a lifesaver:

"WIDOWER, 55, Contractor, well off, good provider. Eager to meet lady with some small children to raise and educate. Send particulars and pix first letter."

Mona felt suddenly weak, and closed her eyes as she sunk back on her pillow. She turned out the light and dreamed that she saw her deceased husband, Mike, his own curly head pillowed on a cloud, his eyes and lips smiling at her like they used to do, making light of all sorrows and fears.

A few moments later she awakened with a start to find that it was only past midnight. She jumped up and turned on the light to look at her face in the mirror. She brushed back her still black hair and peered curiously at her reflection. The short nap had been good for her. Lines in her face were less, but character lines of one who had loved and loved and suffered. Her complexion was still fair. And her deep-set blue eyes were a striking contrast to the whiteness of her skin.

She had taken care of her figure in spite of the drudgery of keeping up a home and raising five spirited boys. Five boys who one day would take care of their mother—but that day was such a long way off.

Meanwhile here was a man asking to help her burdens. Or was he? She looked in the mirror again and gave her tiny a good sharp

"Mona Murphy, wake up! How can you possibly expect to compete with the crowd of women that must already have besieged this kindly within less than an hour after the news appeared on the streets.

She read the ad again. It said some children. How many was some. Two Mona Murphy was a handy one with the needle and she kept her family's body and soul together with her neat dressmaking, provided of course that the ladies on Ritz Street permitted her to take the work home with her, for she didn't dare absent herself for long from her mischievous kiddies.

As a matter of fact, making and mending clothes for her five kids would have been work enough for any able-bodied homemaker. But on this particular day in July with the thermometer flirting in the upper nineties, the heat and all had just about got her down. Or so she thought until little Tim spilled the ink bottle (not washable) on some very expensive nylon material on which she was working.

'Perish the day,' she cried, 'that Adam met Eve! Now it will take all the rest money to make good the ruin of the dress if indeed I can find the material at all!'

Her immediate problem, however, was to clean up little Tim who looked like a printer's devil as he soaked in the bathtub.

'Look mummy,' he crowed with delight, 'I can write on the wall with my finger!'

But even weary days draw to an end and Mrs. Murphy breathed a sigh of relief that night as she undressed for bed and stretched out her weary limbs, wiggling her toes in a modest gesture of freedom. The afternoon paper was on her bed and she turned its pages apathetically under the inadequate light when suddenly she sat up, scarcely able to believe her eyes, reading the 'personal' again and again.

...ately not live. And then she saw else for the first time. Impossible, in-...ere it was. Instead of giving a ... number, the brave man had actually
... telephone number.

... heart sank at the thought of all the
... who had telephoned him by now. They'd ... worn his patience so thin that he had
... of the whole business. Had tried the ... had ever put an ad for a wife in the
... and cursed himself for a fool for giving
... hone number?

... wait a minute," thought Mona, and she
... see Mike's smiling face with the never say
... ook in his eyes. "Wait just a minute. If the ... foolish man had not yet come to a de-
... if hundreds of women had hung up because
... e was busy, now might be a good time to ... him. If he answered the phone at midnight,
... bed, awakened from sleep and yet his
... was not cross, that would be a good sign.
... indeed, such a man would be not only very
... but even tempered and good natured.

... a tossed her head and thrust out her jaw
... a little gesture peculiar to her when she
... up her mind. Carefully closing the doors
... e rooms where the children were sleeping,
... went in the phone and dialed the number.

... her surprise a crisp, business-like woman's
... e answered and did not even give her time to ... her business. "Yes, yes, I know all about it.
... many children have you, please? Five? Did ... five?"

... heart sunk to her boots. "Yes, five," she
... ed faintly. "But they're very good."

... se speak up, I can hardly hear you," said
... dy. "And what is your address?"

... a gave her address. "Mr. Antonio will be ... at seven o'clock tomorrow morning to see
... Seven o'clock sharp. Is that agreeable to
... ?"

... ven o'clock?" gasped Mona. "Why, yes—
... I suppose so. I see."

... Good," said the crisp voice and the owner
... g up before Mona could say anything more.

... crawled back to bed and tried to compose ... rasing thoughts. If she were to look at all
... h in the morning she would have to catch
... sleep.

... seemed only a short time before she was ... ikened by the third of the morning paper
... the sidewalk near her window. That meant
... was six o'clock in the morning. She sprang
... ul bed full of panic. To get the children
... and fed and her house in some semblance
... ed by even o'clock challenged all her speed
... murtfulness. Yet, when the front door bell
... d at seven sharp, she and the children
... home were quite presentable.

Mr. Antonio was a thick-headed, short man with a face full of vitality, a beaming smile and a kindly eye. He looked like Caruso, but it was a baritone voice that boomed at the awe-struck Mrs.
Murphy.

"Good morning, Mrs. Murphy. I see you get up up plenty early like me. Tony Antonio. Hmmm?"

"Won't you come in, Mr. Antonio," said Mrs.
Murphy.

Tony Antonio took off his hat and strode into the living room, looking this way and that, his roving eye missing no detail of the neatly kept home.

"Won't you sit down," said Mrs. Murphy. And Mr. Antonio liked her soft voice and the way she asked instead of giving orders, for in the home of Tony Antonio he was the boss.

"It's awfully early, but how about some coffee?" asked Mrs. Murphy.

"How you know that? I eat for breakfast?"
Hmmm?"

"I could tell you some eggs and toast," ventured Mrs. Murphy, a trifle embarrassed.

"Naw, naw, one maybe two cups of coffee is all I eat for breakfast. But is wonderful how you know. Mona brought in coffee that was already percolating and Tony Antonio drank three cups, snacking his lips and wiping his mouth on the back of his hand. Then in came the five children and Tony Antonio sprang to his feet and embraced them all.

"Bambinos, bambinos, is water, etc.," he cried.

"And all boys is more water, etc.," And now Mrs.
Murphy you must come and have breakfast with me. — is all right. I have housekeeper or secretary in home. She answer percolator. But you must come. With Tony Antonio is everything fifty-fifty. And bring the bambinos."

Mrs. Murphy was relaxing with the speed of this strange courtship. But Tony Antonio seemed such a good man that she came to his house with her five boys. And he made her warmly welcome. But she had to sit down suddenly when his front door housekeeper brought in five girls, daughters of the absent Mr. Antonio. Introductions flew fast and furiously and the children seemed to risk to do nothing tight away. Tony beamed and patting strong them around Mrs. Murphy. And she beamed her tired head against it as she heard him say:

"You make me good wife. I make you good husband. You have five boys. I have five girls.
With Tony Antonio is everything fifty-fifty."

"You make me good
wife. I make you good husband. You have five boys. I have five girls.
With Tony Antonio is everything fifty-fifty."
